St. Cajetan founded the Theatines, who endeavor to follow the manner and life of the Apostles. Trusting in God, they refrained from begging alms and waited until the faithful brought them help. Crowds flocked to the holy priest, who sat some days up to 16 hours in the confessional. Through his prayers, penances, and long years as pastor, he managed to revitalize a parish that had been morally and spiritually corrupt when he took over. He died in 1859.

When he was called to deliver up the property of the Church in his charge, he showed to the persecutors a crowd of poor people. “Here are the true treasures of the Church,” he said,” they convert our alms into imperishable treasure for us.” As a reward for his daring he was made to undergo torture on the grill and died on August 10, 258, a few days after the Pope.
